... Honesty the best Policy.

NO. 96.

Senator Yates of Illinois, in the course of the eloquent speech at his recent reception at the capitol of that State, made the following reference to a memorable event in its history :

You all remember well-I refer to it because I was at that time a member of the Legislature-when the State of Illinois became involved in a debt to the amount of $20,000,000, incurred from the mammoth system of "internal improve-ments." Mississippi, under the lead of Jeff Davis, repudiated her debt, and the Northern Democracy, the Democracy of Illinois, were also in favor of repudiat-ing the debt of Illinois; and I am sorry to say, also, that many of our Whig friends believed this debt could never be paid. We remember that it was at a be paid. We remember that it was at a time of financial embarrassment; that there was no immigration to the State; all were borne down heavily with taxes, and it seemed that the payment of this debt was an impossible thing. But, notwithstanding this, as members of the Legislature, we came forward and levied the two-mill tax, and from that very moment the State of Illinois began to prosper as it never had prospered be-fore. The people honestly and faithful-ly stood by their contract; immigration began to come into the State, and the consequence now is that Illinois is one of the most prosperous States in the Union, with nearly three millions of inhabitants; her credit is high in every part of the world—upon the banks of the Rnine, in England and everywhere, the bonds of the State of Illinois, and its honest people, are high, and the people have flourished by the blessings of God, because they stood faithfully and honestly by their contracts. God bless bur beautiful and glorious Illinois!—the State that stands by her faith, the State that keeps her word, the State that has elected the President the two last terms, and the State that will elect the next consequence now is that Illinois is one and the State that will elect the next President from her borders.

Shirt Maker and Shirt Buyer.

There is more truth than fiction in the following sketch from the New York Sun of a recent date :

SCENE-Workroom of a large establishment.

Employer to Seamstress-Hand out those shirts. Be alive, I have no time to throw away on sewing women. [Examing the articles.] A dozen here, you say; twenty cents apiece. You left out a stitch there.

Seamstress—I couldn't help it, the candle was so dim, and my eyes so weak after fifteen hours' work.
Boss—What do I care for your eyes, or how long you work? I'll fine you twenty cents for the dropped stitches, and twenty more for keeping them out

HADDOCK, and twenty more for keeping them out so long. Seamstress-Oh, sir, don't! I couldn't help it. Two of the children are sick;

one of them may be dead before I get home. For God's sake don't fine me. [She cries.]
Boss—What the d—1 do I care for you or your brats! Stop your whimpering or I'il call a policeman. There's sixty cents; begone out of this. [Exit woman, crying.]

SCENE—Store; same man, selling the same shirts to a gentleman.

Boss-The shirts are first-class, sir, made by one of our most careful sewers, bound to wear as long as they hold to-

Gentleman-It seems to me that four dollars apiece is rather high. Boss-Not at all, sir; the bare making cost 75 cents apiece, and they are worth it, sir. There's an unusual amount of work on a shirt, sir. You'll take them, sir. Anything else, sir? Would like to wait upon you, sir, as long as you like. Oh, you don't care for anything else. Very well, sir; I'll send them home, sir. [Exhit purchaser.]

John Corode on the Stump. Hon. John Covode addressed a Republican meeting at Dunbar, Fayette County, Pa., recently, and, alluding to the course of Andrew Johnson, said:

I was summoned to his room immediately after he came into office. There were a number of others present, among them old Ben. Wade. Mr. Johnson sold he was giad to see us, and the first question he asked us was, whether it would be best to proceed with Lincoln's Cabinet. Mr. Wade immediately said : "Andy, I want to know what your policy is going to be?" Said he, in reply, "Hang them, HANG them!" We asked him how many he intended to kill. He said, at least two hundred, including Jeff. Davis.

Not long after that, he sent for me, and asked me to go to the South, and transact some important business for the Government, and 1 finally accepted. The Cabinet held a meeting and defined my duties. I was told to look through the Southern States and see what relies had better he adopted to what policy had better be adopted to take care of the freedmen. Another subject was to see what kind of a spirit manifested by the army that had just surrendered in Texas; whether they were in a proper frame of mind to justify the Government in permitting them to come back without keeping them under military control.

I went to the Red River, and there found Price's army of Missouri, that, after surrendering, had come to the
